

LaSalle Police Service

Chief of Police

Located in the Windsor Essex region of Southwestern Ontario, the Town of LaSalle is today a growing, prosperous and diverse community of 32,000 people. The LaSalle Police Service has a long history of distinguished service to the community; today LaSalle is recognized as one of the safest communities in Canada.

With the upcoming retirement of Chief Leontowicz, the LaSalle Police Service has commenced the search for a successor who will build on the reputation for respected leadership and community engagement for which the Service is recognized. The new Chief will bring to the role a broad base of experience as a police executive, known for working in partnership with the community, continuing to strengthen and foster positive working relationships with the Board, Town Council, local businesses, and as appropriate, other levels of government.

As Chief, you will provide hands-on leadership and guidance to a service of 54 members – including 36 sworn officers. You will be an engaged and visible member of the LaSalle community, working in partnership with the Board, Council, community organizations and neighbouring police services, to address the challenges facing this small, active community. Respected for your leadership within a progressive police service, you have demonstrated a commitment to best practices in financial and human resources management. Above all, you will be a caring and trusted leader who inspires accountability as the Service embraces the opportunities and challenges in the coming years.
